Her Majesty's Government, while taking note of document L/3166/Add.1, wishes to draw attention to the footnote on page 2 of document L/3166 which reads:

"The names of the territories are those furnished to the secretariat by the governments responsible for the application of the GATT to the trade of the territories and are here listed without prejudice to any disagreement that may exist between contracting parties concerning political sovereignty or concerning the name of a territory."

Her Majesty's Government, not being able to accept the views of the Government of Chile as set out in document L/3166/Add.1, have nevertheless noted the reference to Article IV of the Antarctic Treaty to which the United Kingdom is also a party.
