In determining whether the transaction value is acceptable for the purposes of paragraph 1, the fact that the buyer and the seller are related within the meaning of Article 1.2 shall not in itself be grounds for regarding the transaction value as unacceptable. Where necessary, the circumstances surrounding the sale shall be examined and the transaction value shall be accepted provided that the relationship did not influence the price. If, in the light of information provided by the importer or otherwise, the Customs administration has grounds for considering that the relationship influenced price, it shall communicate such grounds to the importer and he shall be given a reasonable opportunity to respond. SECTION 20

1. For the purposes of Annex..... Of the Customs Management Decree, the place of introduction in to the customs territory of the Sultanate of Oman shall be:
 - (a) for goods carried by sea and then, without transshipment, by inland waterway, the first place of entry in to the Country or further inland, subject to proof being furnished to the customs office that the freight to the port of unloading is higher then that to the first place of entry.
 - (b) For goods carried by rail, inland waterway, or road, the place of entry in to this Country.
 - (c) For goods carried by other means, the place where the land frontier of the customs territory is crossed.

CHAPTER 4: PROVISIONS CONCERNING TRANSPORT COSTS

SECTION 21

In applying Annex.....of the Customs Management Decree:

where goods are carried by the same mode of transport to a point beyond the place of introduction in to the customs territory, transport costs shall be assessed in proportion to the distance covered outside and inside the customs territory of the Sultanate.

(b)

where goods are invoiced at a uniform free domicile price that corresponds to the price at the place of introduction, transport costs within the territory shall not be deducted from that price. However, such deduction shall be allowed if evidence is produced to the customs authorities that the free-frontier price would be lower than the uniform free domicile price.

(c)

where transport is free or provided by the buyer, transport costs to the place of introduction, calculated in accordance with the schedule of freight rates normally applied for the same modes of transport, shall be included in the customs value.

SECTION 22

1. All postal charges levied up to the place of destination in respect of goods sent by post shall be included in the customs value of these goods, with the exception of any supplementary postal charge levied in this Country.
2. No adjustment to the declared value shall, however, be made in respect of such charges in determining the value of consignments of a non-commercial nature.
3. Paragraphs 1 and 2 are not applicable to goods carried by the express postal services provided by Companies such as DHL, UPS, and Federal Express, for example.

CHAPTER 6: PROVISIONS CONCERNING RATES OF EXCHANGE

SECTION 23

For the purposes of Section 23 to 25 of this chapter:

- (a) 'rate recorded' shall mean, the latest selling rate of exchange recorded for commercial transactions on the foreign

- exchange market of the Central Bank of the Sultanate of Oman.
- (b) 'published' shall mean made generally known in a manner designated by the Customs authority.
 - (c) 'currency' shall mean any monetary unit used as a means of settlement between monetary authorities or on the international market.

SECTION 24

Where a rate of exchange can not be established under the provisions of Article 9, the rate of exchange to be used shall be designated by the customs administration and shall reflect as effectively as possible the current value of the currency in question in commercial transactions in terms of Omani Rials.

SECTION 25

1. Where a rate of exchange recorded on the last Wednesday of a month and published on that or the following day differs by 5% or more from the rate established in accordance with Article 9 for entry in to use the following month, it shall replace the latter rate from the first Wednesday of that month as the rate to be applied for the application of Article 9 of Annex....o the Customs Management Decree.
2. Where in the course of a period of application as referred to in the preceding provisions, a rate of exchange recorded on a Wednesday and published on that or the following day differs by 5% or more from the rate being used in accordance with this Chapter, it shall replace the latter rate and enter in to use on the Wednesday following as the rate to be used for the application of Section 78 of the Act.
The replacement rate shall remain in use for the remainder of the current month, provided that this rate is not superseded due to operation of the provisions of the first sentence of this paragraph.
3. Where, a rate of exchange is not recorded on a Wednesday or, if recorded, is not published on that or the following day, the rate recorded shall, for the application of paragraphs 1 and 2, be the rate most recently recorded and published prior to that Wednesday.

SECTION 26

When the customs authorities authorize a declarant to furnish or supply at a later date certain details concerning the declaration for free circulation of the goods in the form of a periodic declaration, this authorization may, at the declarant's request, provide that a single rate be used for elements forming part of the customs value as expressed in a particular currency. In this case, the rate to be used shall be the rate, established in accordance with this Chapter, which is applicable on the first day of the period covered by the declaration in question.

SECTION 27

1. Except where it is essential for the correct application of import duties, the customs authorities shall waive the requirement of all or part of the declaration provided for in Section 29 (1):

a.

where the customs value of the imported goods in a consignment does not exceedOmani Rials provided that they do not constitute split or multiple consignments from the same consignor to the same consignee; or

where the importations involved are of a non-commercial nature; or

c.

Where the submission of the particulars in question is not necessary for the application of the Customs Tariff of the Sultanate of Oman or where the customs duties provided for in the Tariff are not chargeable pursuant to specific customs provisions.

2. A waiver granted under this Article may be withdrawn and the submission of a value declaration may be required where it is found that a condition necessary to qualify for that waiver was not or is no longer met.

SECTION 28

Where computerized systems are used, or where the goods concerned are the subject of a general, periodic or recapitulative declaration, the customs authorities may authorize variations in the form of representation of data required for the determination of customs value.

SECTION 29

1. The person referred to in Section 27 (2) shall furnish the customs authorities with a copy of the invoice on the basis of which the value of the imported goods is declared. Where the customs value is declared in writing, the customs authorities will retained this copy.

SECTION 30

1. The customs authorities need not determine the customs valuation of imported goods on the basis of the transaction value method if, in accordance with the procedure set out in paragraph 2, they are not satisfied, on the basis of reasonable doubts, that the declared value represents the total amount paid or payable as referred to in Article 3 of the Customs Management Decree Annex.....
2. Where the customs authorities have doubts described in paragraph 1 they may ask for additional information in accordance with Section 29 (4). If those doubts continue, the Customs authority must, before reaching a final decision, notify the person concerned, in writing if requested, of the grounds for those doubts and provide him a reasonable opportunity to respond.

A final decision and the grounds therefore shall be communicated in writing to the person concerned.

SECTION 31

Charges for interest under a financing arrangement entered in to by the buyer and relating to the purchase of imported goods shall not be regarded as part of the customs value provided that:

a.
the charges are distinguished from the price actually paid or payable for the goods;

b.
the financing arrangement was made in writing;

c.
Where required, the buyer can demonstrate that such goods are actually sold at the price declared as the price actually paid or payable, and

The claimed rate of interest does not exceed the level for such transactions prevailing in the country where, and at the time when finance was provided.

This shall apply regardless of whether the finance is provided by the seller, a bank or another natural or legal person. It shall also apply, if appropriate, where goods are valued under a method other than the transaction value.

SECTION 32

In determining the customs value of imported carrier media bearing data or instructions, only the cost or value of the carrier medium itself shall be taken in to account. The customs value shall not, therefore, include the cost or value of the data or instructions, provided that this is distinguished from the cost or the value of the carrier medium.

For this purpose, the expression “carrier medium” shall not be taken to include integrated circuits, semiconductors and similar devices or articles incorporating such circuits or devices; the expression “data or instructions” shall not be taken to include sound cinematic or video recordings.

ANNEX A

INTERPRETATIVE NOTES ON CUSTOMS VALUE

Reference to provisions of the Customs Act	Notes
Article 3(2)	The price actually paid or payable refers to the price for the imported goods. Thus the flow of dividends or other payments from the buyer to the seller that do not relate to the imported goods are not part of the customs value.
Article 3 (2)(a)(3)	An example of such restriction would be the case where a seller requires a buyer of automobiles not to sell or exhibit them prior to a fixed date which represents the beginning of a model year.
Article	Some examples of this include:

3(2)(a)(b)

- (a) the seller establishes the price of the imported goods on condition that the buyer will also buy other goods in specified quantities;
- (b) the price of the import goods is dependent upon the price or prices at which the buyer of the imported goods sells other goods to the seller of the imported goods;
- (c) the price is established on the basis of a form of payment extraneous to the imported goods, such as where the imported goods are semi-finished goods which have been provided by the seller on condition that he will receive a specified quantity of the finished goods.

However, conditions or considerations relating to the production or marketing of the imported goods shall not result in rejection of the transaction value.

For example, the fact that the buyer furnishes the seller with engineering and plans undertaken in the Country of importation shall not result in rejection of the transaction value for the purposes of Article 3(2).

Article 3(3)

1. Paragraphs 3 and 4 provide different means of establishing the acceptability of a transaction value.

Paragraph 3 provides that where the buyer and the seller are related, the circumstances surrounding the sale shall be examined and the transaction value shall be accepted as the customs value provided that the relationship did not influence the price. It is not intended that there should be an examination of the circumstances in all cases where the buyer and the seller related.

Such examination will only be required where they are doubts about the acceptability of the price.

Where the customs authorities have no doubts about the acceptability of the price, it should be accepted without requesting further information from the declarant. For example, the customs authorities may have previously examined the relationship, or it may already have detailed information concerning the buyer and seller, and may already be satisfied from such examination or information that the relationship did not influence the price.

2. Where the customs authorities are unable to accept the transaction value without further inquiry, they should give the declarant an opportunity to supply such further detailed information as may be necessary to enable it to examine the circumstances surrounding the sale, in this context, the customs authorities should be prepared to examine relevant aspects of the transaction, including the way in which the buyer and the seller organize their commercial relations and the way in which the price in question was arrived at, in order to determine whether the relationship influenced the price.

Where it can be shown that the buyer and seller, although related under the provisions of Article 2(3) of the Act, buy from and sell to each other as if they were not related, this would demonstrate that the price had not been influenced by the relationship. As an example of this, if the price had been settled in a manner consistent with the normal pricing practices of the industry in question or with the way the seller settles prices for sale to buyers who are not related to him, this would demonstrate that the price had not been influenced by the relationship.

As a further example, where it is shown that the price is adequate to ensure recovery of all costs plus a profit which is representative of the firm's overall profit realised over a representative period of time (e.g. on an annual basis) in sales of goods of the same class or kind, this would demonstrate that the price had not been influenced.

4. Paragraph 4 provides an opportunity for the declarant to demonstrate that the transaction value closely approximates to a 'test' value previously accepted by the customs authorities and is therefore acceptable under the provisions of Article 3. Where a test under paragraph 4 is met, it is not necessary to examine the question of influence under paragraphs 3 and 4. (a) If the customs authorities already have sufficient information to be satisfied, without further detailed inquiries, that one of the tests provided in paragraph 4 has been met, there is no reason for them to require the declarant to demonstrate that the test can be met.

Article 3(4) A number of factors must be taken in to consideration in determining whether one value 'closely approximate' to another value.

These factors include the nature of the imported goods, the nature of the industry itself, the season in which the goods are imported, and, whether the difference in values is commercially significant. Since these factors may vary from case to case, it would be impossible to apply a uniform standard such as a fixed percentage, in each case. For example, a small difference in value in a case involving one type of goods could be unacceptable while a large difference in a case involving another type of goods might be acceptable in determining whether the transaction value closely approximates to the 'test' values set forth in Article 3 (4).

Article 4(1) An example of an indirect payment would be the settlement by the buyer, whether the whole or in part, of a debt owed by the seller.

Article 5 & 6

In applying these provisions, the customs authorities shall, where possible, use a sale of identical or similar goods, as appropriate, at the same commercial level and in substantially the same quantity as the goods being valued.

Where no such sale is found, a sale of identical or similar goods, as appropriate, that takes place under any one of the following three conditions may be used:

- (a) a sale at the same commercial level but in a different quantity,
- (b) a sale at a different commercial level but in substantially the same quantity., or
- (c) a sale at a different commercial level and in a different quantity.

2. Having found a sale under any one of these three conditions adjustments will then be made, as the case may be, for:

(i) quantity factors only;

(ii) commercial level factors only; or

(iii) both commercial level and quantity factors.

3. The expression 'and/or' allows the flexibility to use the sales and make the necessary adjustments in any one of the three conditions described above.

4. A condition for adjustment because of different commercial levels or different quantities is that such adjustment, whether it leads to an increase or a decrease in the value, be made only on the basis of demonstrated evidence that clearly establishes the reasonableness and accuracy of the adjustment, e.g. valid price lists containing prices referring to different levels or different quantities.

As an example of this, if the imported goods being valued consist of a shipment of 10 units and the only identical or similar imported goods, as appropriate, for which a transaction value exists involved a sale of 500 units, and it is recognized that the seller grants quantity discounts, the required adjustment may be accomplished by resorting to the seller's price list and using that price applicable to a sale of 10 units.

This does not require that a sale had to have been made in quantities of 10 as long as the price list has been established as being bona fide through sales at other quantities. In the absence of such an objective measure, however, the determination of a customs value under the provisions of Articles 5 and 6 is not appropriate.

5. Local taxes payable by reason of the sale of the goods for which a deduction is not made under the provisions of paragraph 1(a)(iv) of article 5 shall be deducted under the provisions of paragraph 1(a)(i) of Article 5.

Article 7

As a general rule, customs value is determined under these provisions on the basis of information readily available in the territory. In order to determine a computed value, however, it may be necessary to examine the cost of producing the goods being valued and other information which has to be obtained from outside the territory.

Furthermore, in most cases the producer of the goods will be outside the jurisdiction of the authorities of the territory.

The use of the computed value method will generally be limited to those cases where the buyer and seller are related and the producer is prepared to supply to the authorities of the country of importation the necessary costings and to provide facilities for any subsequent verification which may be necessary.

2. The 'cost or value' referred to in Article 7 1(1)(a) first indent, is to be determined on the basis of information relating to the production of the goods being valued supplied by or on behalf of the producer. It is to be based upon the commercial accounts of the producer, provided that such accounts are consistent with the generally accepted accounting principles applied in the country where the goods are produced.

3. The 'amount for profit and general expenses' referred to in Article 7 (1)(b) second indent, is to be determined on the basis of information supplied by or on behalf of the producer unless his figures are inconsistent with those usually reflected in sales of goods of the same class or kind as the goods being valued which are made by producers in the country of exportation for export to the country of importation.

4. No cost or value of the elements referred to in this Article shall be counted twice in determining the computed value.

It should be noted in this context that the 'amount for profit and general expenses' has to be taken as a whole, it follows that if, in any particular case, the producer's profit figure is low and his general expenses are high, his profit and general expenses taken together may nevertheless be consistent with that usually reflected in sales of goods of the same class or kind.

Such a situation might occur, for example, if a product were being launched in the territory and the producer accepted a nil or low profit to offset high general expenses associated with the launch.

Where the producer can demonstrate that he is taking allow profit on his sales of the imported goods because of particular commercial circumstances, his actual profit figures should be taken in to account provided that he has valid commercial reasons to justify them and his pricing policy reflects usual pricing policies in the branch of industry concerned. Such a situation might occur, for example, where producers have been forced to lower prices temporarily because of an unforeseeable drop in demand, or where they sell goods to complement a range of goods being produced in the country of importation and accept a low profit to maintain competitiveness.

Where the producer's own figures for profit and general expenses are not consistent with those usually reflected in sales of goods of the same class or kind as the goods being valued which are made by producers in the country of exportation for export to the country of importation, the amount for profit and general expenses may be based upon relevant information other than that supplied by or on behalf of the producer of the goods.

6. Whether certain goods are 'of the same class or kind' as other goods must be determined on a case-by-case basis with reference to the circumstances involved. In determining the usual profit and general expenses under the provisions of Article 7 sales for export to the country of importation of the narrowest group or range of goods, which includes the goods being valued, for which the necessary information can be provided, should be examined, For the purposes of Article 7 'goods of the same class or kind' must be from the same country as the goods being valued.

(Article 7 of the Agreement.)

1. Customs values determined under the provisions of Article 1,7) should, to the greatest extent possible, be based on previously determined customs values.

2. The methods of valuation to be employed under Article 31 (1) should be those laid down in Sections 66 to 71 but a reasonable flexibility of such methods would be in conformity with the aims and provisions of Section 66(2).

(i) Some examples of reasonable flexibility are as follows:

(ii) identical goods – the requirement that the identical goods should be exported at or about the same time as the goods being valued could be flexibly interpreted; identical imported goods produced in a country other than the country of exportation of the goods being valued could be the basis for customs valuation; customs values of identical imported goods already determined under the provisions of Articles 5 and 6 could be used;

(iii) similar goods – the requirement that the similar goods should be exported at or about the same time as the goods being valued could be flexibly interpreted; similar imported goods produced in a country other than the country of exportation of the goods being valued could be the basis for customs valuation; customs values of similar imported goods already determined under the provisions of Sections 70 and 71 could be used;

(iv) deductive method – the requirement that the goods shall have been sold in the ‘condition as imported’ in Article 7 of this Regulation could be flexibly interpreted; the ‘90 days’ requirement could be administered flexibly.

Article
8(1)(b)(2)

1. There are two factors involved in the apportionment of the elements specified in Article 8(1)(b) to the imported goods – the value of the element itself and the way in which that value is to be apportioned to the imported goods. The apportionment of these elements should be made in a reasonable manner appropriate to the circumstances and in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles.

2. Concerning the value of the element, if the buyer acquires the element from a seller not related to him at a given cost, the value of the element is that cost. If the element was produced by the buyer or by a person related to him, its value would be the cost of producing it. If the element had been previously used by the buyer, regardless of whether it had been acquired or produced by him, the original cost of acquisition or production would have to be adjusted downwards to reflect its use in order to arrive at the value of the element.

4. As an illustration of the above, the buyer provides the producer with a mould to be used in the production of the imported goods and contracts with him to buy 10,000 units. By the time of arrival of the first shipment of 1,000 units, the producer has already produced 4,000 units. The buyer may request the customs authorities to apportion the value of the mould over 1,000, 4,000 or 10,000 units.

Article 8(b)(4) 1. Additions for the elements specified in Article 8(b)(4) should be based on objective and quantifiable data. In order to minimize the burden for both the declarant and customs authorities in determining the values to be added, data readily available in the buyer's commercial record system should be used in so far as possible.

2. For those elements supplied by the buyer that are purchased or leased by the buyer, the addition would be the cost for the purchase or the lease. No addition shall be made for those elements available in the public domain, other than the cost of obtaining copies of them.

3. The case with which it may be possible to calculate the values to be added will depend on a particular firm's structure and management practice, as well as its accounting methods.

4. For example, it is possible that a firm which imports a variety of products from several countries maintains the records of its design center outside the country of importation in such a way as to show accurately the costs attributable to a given product. In such cases, a direct adjustment may appropriately be made under the provisions of Article 8.

5. In another case, a firm may carry the cost of the design center outside the country of importation as a general overhead expense without allocation to specific products.

In this instance, an appropriate adjustment could be made under the provisions of Article 8 with respect to the imported goods by apportioning total design center costs over total production benefiting from the design centre and adding such apportioned cost on a unit basis to imports.

6. Variations in the above circumstances will, of course, require different factors to be considered in determining the proper method of allocation

7. In cases where the production of the element in question involves a number of countries and over a period of time, the adjustment should be limited to the value actually added to that element outside the territory.

Article 8(1)(c) The royalties and licence fees referred to in Article 8(1)(c) may include, among other things, payments in respect to patents, trademarks and copyrights.

Article 8(3) Where objective and quantifiable data do not exist with regard to the additions required to be made under the provisions of Article 8 the transaction value can not be determined under the provisions of Article 3. As an illustration of this, a royalty is paid on the basis of the price in a sale in the importing country of a litre of a particular product that was imported by the kilogram and made up in to a solution after importation. If the royalty is based partially on the imported goods and partially on other factors which have nothing to do with the imported goods (such as when the imported goods are mixed with domestic ingredients and are no longer separately identifiable, or when the royalty can not be distinguished from special financial arrangements between the buyer and the seller), it would be inappropriate to attempt to make an addition for the royalty. However, if the amount of this royalty is based only on the imported goods and can be readily quantified, an addition to the price actually paid or payable can be made.

Article 1(2)(f&g) One person shall be deemed to control another when the former is legally or operationally in a position to exercise restraint or direction over the latter.

Imp Section 11(2) Article 7(1)(a) 1. The words 'profit and general expenses' should be taken as a whole. The figure for the purposes of this deduction should be determined on the basis of information supplied by the declarant unless his figures are inconsistent with those obtaining in sales in the country of importation of imported goods of the same class or kind. Where the declarant's figures are inconsistent with such figures, the amount for profit and general expenses may be based upon relevant information other than that supplied by the declarant.

2. In determining either the commissions or the usual profits and general expenses under this provision, the question whether certain goods are of the same class or kind as other goods must be determined on a case-by-case basis by reference to the circumstances involved. Sales in the country of importation of the narrowest group or range of imported goods of the same class or kind which includes the goods being valued, for which the necessary information can be provided, should be examined.

For the purposes of this provision, 'goods of the same class or kind' includes goods imported from the same country as the goods being valued as well as goods imported from other countries.

Imp Section
Article 7(2)

1. Where this method of valuation is used, deductions made for the value added by further processing shall be based on objective and quantifiable data relating to the cost of such work. Accepted industry formulas, recipes, methods of construction, and other industry practices would form the basis of the calculations.

2. This method of valuation would normally not be applicable when, as a result of the further processing, the imported goods lose their identity. However, there can be instances where, although the identity of the imported goods is lost, the value added by the processing can be determined accurately without unreasonable difficulty.

On the other hand, there can also be instances where the imported goods their identity but form such a minor element in the goods sold in the country of importation that the use of this valuation method would be unjustified. In view of the above, each situation of this type must be considered on a case-by-case basis.

Imp Section

1. As an example of this, goods are sold from a price list which grants favourable unit prices for purchases made in larger quantities.

Sales quantity	Unit price	Number of sales	Total quantity sold at each price
1 to units	100	10 sales of 5 units Five sales of 3 units	65
11 to 25 units	95	Five sales of 11 units	55
Over 25 units	90	One sale of 30 units One sale of 50 units	80

The greatest number of units sold at a price is 80; therefore, the unit price in the greatest aggregate quantity is 90.

2. As another example of this, two sales occur.

In the first sale 500 units are sold at a price of 95 currency units each. In the second sale 400 units are sold at a price of 90 currency units each. In this example, the greatest number of units sold at a particular price is 500; therefore, the unit price in the greatest aggregate quantity is 95.

A third example would be the following situation where various quantities are sold at various prices.

(a) Sales

Sale quantity	Unit Price
40 units	100
30 units	90
15 units	100
50 units	90
25 units	105
35 units	90
5 units	100

Total quantity sold
Unit price

65	95
50	95
60	100
25	105

In this example, the greatest number of units sold at a particular price is 65; therefore, the unit price in the greatest aggregate quantity is 90.

APPLICATION OF GENERALLY ACCEPTED ACCOUNTING PRINCIPLES FOR THE DETERMINATION OF CUSTOMS VALUE

1. 'Generally accepted accounting principles' refers to the recognized consensus or substantial authoritative support within a country at a particular time as to which economic resources and obligations should be recorded as assets and liabilities, which changes in assets and liabilities should be recorded, how the assets and liabilities and changes in them should be measured, what information should be disclosed and how it should be disclosed, and which financial statements should be prepared. These standards may be broad guidelines of general application as well as detailed practices and procedures.

For the purposes of the application of the customs valuation provisions, the customs administration concerned shall utilize information prepared in a manner consistent with generally accepted accounting principles in the country which is appropriate for the Article in question. For example, the determination of usual profits and general expenses under the provisions of Article 7(1)(a) of the Act would be carried out utilizing information prepared in a manner consistent with generally accepted accounting principles of the Sultanate of Oman. On the other hand, the determination of usual profit and general expenses under the provisions of Article 7 of the Act would be carried out utilizing information prepared in a manner consistent with generally accepted accounting principles of the country of production. As a further example, the determination of an element provided for in Article 8(1)(b)(ii) of the Act undertaken in the Sultanate of Oman would be carried out utilizing information in a manner consistent with the generally accepted accounting principles of the country.
