WTO Agreement on Agriculture

Regular committee and its key functions

The Committee on Agriculture meets three to four times a year, and oversees the implementation of the Agriculture Agreement.

KEY FUNCTIONS

Reviewing notifications
Members ask each other questions about their notified agricultural policies (notifications) and consult on any other matter relevant to the implementation of agricultural commitments.

Counter notifications
Members can submit counter notifications to the Committee if they feel that a member has neglected to submit its notification or where they have questions or comments pertaining to a member’s notification. Five counter notifications have been made to date.

All questions and answers are publically accessible on the Agriculture Information Management System: AGIMS.wto.org

Monitoring of ministerial decisions
The committee monitors:

(i) the Marrakesh Decision on the possible negative effects of agricultural reform on poorer countries and on net food-importing developing countries.

(ii) agriculture matters forming part of the Doha Ministerial Decision on implementation issues.

(iii) the implementation of the Bali Decision on tariff quota administration, which establishes a mechanism to monitor TRQs with low fill-rates.

(iv) information submitted under the Bali Decision on Public stockholding for food security purposes.

(v) the elimination of agricultural export subsidies and disciplines on export measures with potentially equivalent effect, as agreed at the Nairobi Ministerial Conference in its Decision on export competition.”

Increased use of the review function of the committee

Over the last 25 years, we can see an increased use by WTO members of the review role of the Committee on Agriculture to enquire about policies potentially impacting agri-food trade.

COVID-19 Agriculture measures

A variety of agricultural measures, including export restrictions and agricultural subsidies have been taken by members in response to the COVID-19 crisis; such measures may have an important bearing on the global agri-food markets.

The Committee on Agriculture is an important platform to facilitate an exchange of information and review members’ agriculture policies in response to Covid-19.

The Committee on Agriculture in Special Session (CoA SS)

The Committee on Agriculture in Special Session (CoA SS), the negotiation arm of the WTO agriculture committee, continues the negotiations to improve agriculture disciplines with the aim of establishing a “fair and market-oriented agricultural trading system.”

7 Main topics in agriculture negotiations

- Domestic support: Members aim to further discipline the use of trade-distorting domestic support and level the playing field.

- Market access: Members seek to bring down tariffs and other non-trade barriers to agricultural trade.

- Export competition: Members committed to eliminate export subsidies on agriculture and continue monitoring export measures with potentially equivalent effect.

- Export restriction: Especially since the 2007-2008 “Food crisis”, members are considering ways to improve existing disciplines and promote greater transparency in the administration of export restrictions.

- Cotton: Following the Cotton 4 (Benin, Burkina Faso, Chad and Mali) cotton sectoral initiative, members aim at reducing trade distorting cotton specific domestic support and trade barriers on cotton trade and promoting cotton-related development assistance projects.

- Special safeguard mechanism: Developing members continue asking for reaching an agreement on special safeguard mechanism in order to remedy the impact of import surge and price fluctuations.

- Public stockholding for food security purposes: Building on the interim decision adopted at the Bali Ministerial Conference, members have been working to find a permanent solution to the public stockholding issue to address their food security concerns.
