CORRIGENDUM

Insert after Mr. COUILLARD (Canada), the following remarks by Mr. ABD-EL-ATY (Egypt):

"The Egyptian Government attach special importance to Chapter 6 of the Havana Charter and consider that its application would require detailed studies on primary commodities to maintain equilibrium between consumption and production in order to secure remunerative prices for producers, e.g. the Egyptian cotton industry. These studies, once made, could serve as bases for international agreements. This need for further studies was expressed by Mr. Shackle in his first statement of today. My Government has no objection to problems affecting primary commodities being discussed by international conferences."
