Committee on Balance-of-Payments Restrictions

Original: English

1966 CONSULTATIONS UNDER ARTICLE XII:4(b) WITH SOUTH AFRICA

1. Legal and administrative basis of the restrictions

The balance-of-payments restrictions of the Republic of South Africa are being applied pursuant to the powers conferred on the Minister of Economic Affairs by section 2(1) of the Import and Export Control Act No. 45 of 1963.

The relevant legislation provides that the Minister may, whenever he deems it necessary or expedient in the public interest, by notice in the Government Gazette, prohibit, restrict or regulate imports into or exports from the Republic of South Africa.

2. Methods used in restricting imports

Only one type of import permit, valid for imports from all sources, is issued in respect of all imported goods subject to import permit. The issue of an import permit carries with it the assurance that the foreign exchange to effect the importation in question will automatically be made available by the commercial banks against presentation by the importer of the appropriate shipping documents.

The South African import policy distinguishes generally between the following broad categories of imports:

- (i) goods which may be imported without an import permit (see Annex A);
- (ii) goods which may be imported only under permit, but for which no specific annual quotas are granted to individual importers (see Annex BI and section 4(b)(ii) below);
- (iii) goods which may be imported only under permit, and the importation of which is governed by specific quotas granted annually to individual importers (see Annex BII and section 4(b)(i) below); and

- (iv) certain named goods which may be imported only under specific permit in which the goods to be imported are specifically described (see Annex C).

3. Treatment of imports from different sources

South Africa's import restrictions do not distinguish between sources of supply. Permits are valid for the importation of goods from any country, and the selection of the country of supply is left entirely to the importer. From this it follows that shares in import quotas are not allotted to any particular country, either by unilateral action, special arrangement or negotiation.

4. Commodities or groups of commodities affected by the various forms of restrictions

(a) Goods which may be imported without an import permit

As a result of the tightening of import control during the third quarter of 1965, a number of the goods on the free list became subject to import control as from 25 August 1965.¹ The number of items which may now be imported without an import permit has, accordingly, been reduced substantially and it is estimated that imports under this heading declined from 31 per cent in 1964 to 20 per cent of the country's total imports in 1965.

(b) Capital plant and equipment and raw materials

Import permits are granted for the importation of capital plant and equipment and raw materials required by industry, agriculture and mining on the following basis:

- (i) In the case of merchants who import such goods for resale - according to such quotas as may be authorized from time to time.

Merchant importers of raw materials (excluding textile piece-goods) and capital plant and equipment with an f.o.b. price not exceeding R1,000 per single unit, have been granted an allocation equivalent to 100 per cent of their 1964 imports, which is generally the same as the allocations for 1965.

Initially for 1966, for items of capital plant and equipment with an f.o.b. price per individual item of more than R1,000 and less than R50,000 stock permits were calculated on the basis of 25 per cent of the value of the merchants' imports during the calendar year 1964, less 50 per cent of the "in warehouse" value of any unsold or undelivered goods or equipment as on 1 November 1965. As from 14 July 1966, however, a relaxation was effected, and permits for the importation of plant and equipment generally have been freely issued on the basis of firm orders by end users.¹

Applications of merchant importers of capital plant and equipment with an f.o.b. price exceeding R50,000 per single unit, are being dealt with on an individual basis.

- (ii) In the case of manufacturers who import such goods for their own use -
 - A. for raw materials - on the basis of consumption. Upon receipt of such application, import permits are granted for an amount equal to the difference between the cost of the stock on hand of similar goods at the time of application and the cost of six months' stock at the current rate of consumption; and
 - B. for capital plant and equipment - on a basis of essentiality which at present is being administered very sympathetically.

Based on 1965 statistics, it is estimated that imports of the goods listed under this heading amount to 56 per cent of the country's total imports.

(c) Motor vehicles

For motor vehicles, permits are issued as follows:

- (i) In the case of CKD (completely knocked down) material for commercial vehicles, on a basis of five months' stock for light vehicles and nine months' stock for heavy vehicles;
- (ii) in the case of CKD material for locally-manufactured passenger vehicles (i.e. vehicles for which an acceptable programme of local content has been submitted), on a basis of five months' stock;
- (iii) in the case of CKD material for locally-assembled passenger vehicles, on a restricted basis, but additional import facilities can be earned by increased local content.

¹L/2684

In addition, permits are issued freely to individuals for the importation of built-up motor vehicles with an f.o.b. cost exceeding R1,900. In the case of motor vehicles with an f.o.b. cost not exceeding R1,900, permits are also issued freely provided the vehicle has been used by the applicant for not less than six months outside South Africa and has been registered in the name of the applicant during that period.

Based on the 1965 figures, imports of the above-mentioned motor vehicles amounted to approximately 14 per cent of total imports of which, however, a large portion is not subject to any quota restriction.

(d) Goods subject to import permit for which annual quotas are granted to individual importers

Goods listed under Part II(a) of Annex B

The list included goods which, before 25 August 1965 could be imported without an import permit, as well as certain other items of general merchandise for which, although under permit control, permits were granted freely.

These groups are now being dealt with as one and the 1966 import allocations have been fixed at 100 per cent of an individual importer's actual importations of such goods during the calendar year 1964. (The permits issued for these goods are not transferable for the importation of any other goods.)

General merchandise other than those items listed under Part II(a) of Annex B

The 1966 import allocation for general merchandise other than those included under Part II(a) of Annex B is 55 per cent of an importer's assessment basis which is equivalent to the 1965 allocation. An importer's assessment basis is determined by the type of business done and the volume of business done and is not fixed but is increased in relation to increases in turnover.

Milled rice

The initial 1966 import allocation for rice has been fixed at 30 per cent of an importer's 1964 imports which is equivalent to the tonnages authorized for the initial 1965 issue.

Timber and fertilizers

Import permits for timber and fertilizers will continue to be issued on a special basis in view of the increased local availability.

Textile piece-goods

The 1966 allocation to merchants has been fixed at 100 per cent of a merchant's 1965 quota, while manufacturers are granted their full reasonable requirements of those materials which are not obtainable from local sources.

With the exception of motor vehicles and agricultural tractors and based on 1965 import statistics, imports under this group now amount to approximately 10 per cent of the country's total imports.

(e) Goods subject to specific import permits

This group covers goods which are available, or for which substitutes are available, in both quantity and quality, from domestic sources and in respect of which it is considered that importation would entail not utilizing the country's restricted foreign exchange reserves to the best advantage. The purpose of the arrangement is, therefore, to discourage importation, but at the same time allow some imports to ensure not only that local manufacturers do not enjoy a monopoly of the domestic market, but also that prices of locally manufactured goods remain competitive.

Importers of general merchandise and merchant importers of raw materials wishing to import any of the goods detailed in this group may convert their import permits into specific permits (in which the goods to be imported are described) provided -

- (i) the goods to be imported under the specific permit applied for, fall within the same general category as the goods detailed in the original import permit issued; and
- (ii) the importer surrenders R3 of his original import permit for every R1 of a specific permit required for the importation of the goods mentioned in this group.

The first R5,000 of an importer's total annual quota may be converted into a specific permit on the basis of R1 for R1 except in the case of ladies' handbags, children's handbags, golf bags, disposable artificial plastic hypodermic syringes, natural rubber, zinc, mercury and copper. However, if the goods in this category are imported under rebate of customs duty, a specific permit is not required and there is no import permit loss by conversion.

5. Use of State trading or Government monopoly in restricting imports

Some of the agricultural marketing boards established under the Marketing Act of 1937 have been granted exclusive responsibility for arranging importation, where necessary, of certain commodities falling under their control.

6. Measures taken since the last consultation in relaxing or otherwise modifying the restrictions

Since the last consultation in May 1965, the following measures, designed to adjust the country's import control system to its fast deteriorating balance of payments, have been announced.

- (i) Following the usual liberal second-round allocation of import permits in May 1965, the Minister of Economic Affairs announced on 16 August 1965, that imports had been continuing at an excessive rate which, due largely to unfavourable weather conditions, had adversely affected the country's reserves of foreign exchange. Tighter application of import control was thus announced and the following steps were taken¹:
 - (a) The basis for the issue of import facilities for the importation of raw materials by manufacturers to cover approximately six months' consumption, was from 16 August 1965, calculated on the basis of four months' consumption.
 - (b) More care was to be exercised in the issue of import permits for capital equipment.
 - (c) In both cases importers were expected to obtain their requirements from local sources whenever it was feasible to do so.
 - (d) Applications for the establishment of new factories were to be viewed more critically by the New Industries Committee, particularly in those cases where the new factory concerned relied on a high percentage of imported raw materials or would otherwise contribute relatively little to the country's reserves of foreign exchange.
 - (e) Industries producing goods of a less essential nature and which relied on a large proportion of imported materials were pegged at their 1964 level of imports.
 - (f) Finally, consultations with the motor industry with a view to reducing its stock of vehicles and components to more reasonable levels, were anticipated.

¹L/247C

- (ii) On 25 August 1965, stricter import control measures were also announced in respect of consumer goods.¹ A substantial part of the goods which appeared on the free list was to be subjected to import control, while a small number of consumer commodities, which were either produced in quantity locally or for which the need for importation on a large scale did not exist, was added to the restricted list. In addition, it was decided not to issue a third round of permits for those types of consumer goods in respect of which an issue was normally made at that time of the year. Finally, the ratio according to which permits could be exchanged to obtain permits for goods on the restricted list, was increased from R2 for R1, to R3 for R1.
- (iii) The initial import quotas for 1966 were announced on 10 December 1965, and a further allocation, bringing the 1966 allocation for most categories at that stage to 75 per cent of an importer's 1964 imports, followed on 20 May 1966.²
- (iv) On 26 May 1966, additional import permits were authorized in order to safeguard local industries against possible repercussions resulting from the British seamen's strike.³
- (v) On 8 July 1966, the definition of poplin, as previously applied, was amended and provision was made for poplin, even if imported under rebate of the duty under Schedule No. 3 to the Customs and Excise Act, 1964 (Act No. 91 of 1964), to be imported only under specific permits in which poplin was mentioned. In addition, the importation of disposable artificial plastic hypodermic syringes, scarves in the piece, and certain small tools was restricted to imports under specific import permits.⁴
- (vi) Finally, on 22 July 1966, a third round of import allocations was announced, bringing the total import quotas for 1966 to the levels mentioned in paragraph 4 above.⁵

7. Effects of restrictions on trade and general policy in the use of restrictions for balance-of-payments reasons

As a result of its fast expanding economy, the high and still rising standard of living of its people, and other factors contributing to increased internal demand, South Africa has an exceptionally high propensity to import. During the years 1963 and 1964, imports increased by more than 50 per cent and towards the third quarter of 1965 they continued to increase at an annual rate of 25 per cent.

The country's exports on the other hand, which consist largely of agricultural and other primary products, increased only marginally, mainly as a result of climatic conditions which during the past two years have by no means favoured the agricultural sector. A severe drought has prevailed over most of South Africa, affecting the production of not only those commodities which are generally exported, but also those which are normally produced in sufficient quantities and which have now to be imported to meet the local demand. It is feared that the actual impact of the drought will be felt for a very long time.

As was foreseen at the last consultation, the country's balance of payments deteriorated further in 1965, leaving a gold and foreign assets reserve of only R343 million at the end of August 1965, i.e. just after the tightening of import control had been announced. This decline was not arrested until September 1965, when the total gold and foreign exchange reserves held by the Reserve Bank, the rest of the monetary banking sector and the Government reached a month-end low point of R340 million.

The tightening of import control in August 1965, as well as the restrictive monetary and fiscal measures which had been announced earlier, had the desired effect. During the final quarter of 1965, imports declined to an annual rate of R1,644 million compared with R1,924 million in the third quarter, decreasing the deficit on current account from R424 million and R400 million in the second and third quarters, respectively, to R24 million in the fourth quarter of 1965.

Since the beginning of 1966, the country's gold and foreign exchange reserves have increased persistently, so much so, that the usual third round of import allocations could again be authorized this year. However, although this improvement in the balance of payments has been brought about partly by a decline in imports, the major contribution proved to be the inflow of private and official capital, in particular during the third quarter of 1965. This inflow of capital mainly represented short-term funds and, accordingly, tended to obscure the fact that the balance-of-payments problems were by no means solved.

The restrictions detailed above have already had the desired effect, i.e. the cutting down of imports to a level commensurate with the country's resources. Consequently a third round of import allocations was authorized in July this year and the new allocations for manufacturers' stock based on six months' instead of the former four months' current consumption as from that date. It is anticipated that these measures will give rise to increased imports, since industrialists are now in a position to build up their stocks to higher levels. The latter measure may even cause the reserves to decline again, particularly if substantial increases in South Africa's major agricultural exports are not forthcoming. Whatever the position may be in future, the general policy of the South African Government remains the liberalization of imports to the extent allowed by the country's balance of payments.

List of Annexes

- A. Goods Which May be Imported Without an Import Permit
- B. Goods Subject to Import Permit for which Annual Quotas are Granted to Individual Importers
- C. Goods Subject to Specific Import Permit
- D. Value of Imports for the Years 1962 to 1965.

ANNEX A

Goods Which May be Imported Without an Import Permit

I. Goods exempt from import permit or import licensing

- (a) Goods in transit through South Africa
- (b) Goods being household or personal effects (excluding motor vehicles) imported by any person who arrives or who has arrived in South Africa for a temporary period or to settle therein if the goods are to be used by the said person in South Africa and are not for resale.
- (c) Goods being a bona fide gift and not exceeding 11 lbs. in weight and R10 in value.
- (d) Samples of no commercial value received free of charge.
- (e) Goods imported from Basutoland, Swaziland, or the Bechuanaland Protectorate.
- (f) Goods imported from Rhodesia, Malawi and Zambia if such goods were grown, produced or manufactured in those countries.
- (g) Goods imported for repair or processing in South Africa, and return provided ownership remains vested in the original exporter to South Africa.
- (h) Empty containers which originally contained goods exported from South Africa and returned free of charge to the original exporter in South Africa.
- (i) Goods, the property of a South African resident, returning to South Africa after an absence of not less than fourteen days and required for his personal use or the use of his family, provided the total value thereof does not exceed R200 and provided the goods accompany the South African resident on his return.
- (j) Printed bona fide advertising matter supplied free of charge.
