JOINT WORKING GROUP ON IMPORT RESTRICTIONS

Revision on Annexes to Report of Joint Working Group

1. At the meeting of the Council on 29 June 1971, it was decided that the data assembled by the Joint Working Group should be kept up to date (C/M/70).
2. This document contains the following annex which replaces the annex to L/4604 and Corr.1. It includes information made available to the secretariat up to 15 November 1978.

Revised Consolidated Table of Import Restrictions

B	Industry	Chapters 25-99 26

3. The consolidated table in the annex sets out details of restrictions in force to the extent that restrictions maintained by the specified countries have been notified to the contracting parties in one context or another.

(a) Country coverage

The annex contains the restrictions notified for the eighteen countries consulted by the Joint Working Group as well as, to some extent, the restrictions of dependent territories of these contracting parties. It covers not only those restrictions which are operated on a global basis but also discriminatory restrictions applied to one or a few countries. While every effort has been made to ensure the accuracy of the data, the table should not be considered as a comprehensive and exhaustive list of all restrictions maintained by the countries concerned.

With regard in particular to South Africa, Australia has submitted the following: "South Africa has retained comprehensive import restrictions despite disinvocation under Article XII. Restrictions apply to:

- (i) A wide range of "general merchandise" (mainly consumer goods and goods capable of being produced in South Africa), based on 1969 import levels.
- (ii) A range of goods subject to administrative control via import licences issued for specific quantities of goods (see paragraph 4 of the South African Import Licensing Schedule).

A wide range of Australian goods is affected by the import restrictions listed in (i) and (ii) above.

There is also an additional category of imports also subject to South African import licensing even although import licences are issued fairly freely (see paragraph 2 of the South African Import Licensing Schedule)."

(b) Types of restrictions included

The annex includes all of the types of measures considered by some members of the Group to constitute import restrictions (see paragraphs 8 and 10 of report in L/3391/Rev.1), except restrictions maintained on health and sanitary grounds as well as restrictions on products of a purely military character.

(c) Symbols

(i) Restriction type

- BQ: Bilateral quota
- GQ: Global quota - where restriction applies to goods of most, if not all countries and where the amount of the quota is published
- P: Denotes that imports are generally prohibited or embargoed, with the possible exception of purchases for government (e.g. defence) use
- ST: State trading - an additional symbol indicates the degree of restriction involved, where attention was given to this question
- AL Automatic licensing

- LL: Liberal licensing - where maintaining countries consider their licensing régime to be a purely formal requirement involving no restriction
- DL: Discretionary licensing - includes cases where global quotas may have been established, but not published (see definition of GQ)
- L: Licensing (method unspecified)
- SUSP: (followed by country abbreviation) - where an import restriction has been suspended pending application of an export restraint by the country named in parenthesis
- XR: (followed by country abbreviation) - the country in parenthesis operates an export restraint vis-à-vis the country shown as maintaining the restriction
- MP: Minimum price system
- SR: Seasonal restriction
- R: Restriction (unspecified)
- R (East): A restriction (unspecified) applied to most if not all of the State-trading countries in East Europe
- Q: Quota
- Certain other restrictions (e.g. mixing regulations and screen quotas) are mentioned in individual boxes.

2 For ERM 85.21-22, diodes, transistors, similar semi-conductor devices and integrated circuits (with elements 100 or more but less than 200 in circuit), the restrictions were removed on 19 April 1973. Remaining restrictions are planned to be lifted in the course of 1974.

The United States Merchant Marine Act of 1920 prohibits foreign-built vessels in commerce with the United States.

Vessels (except yachts and pleasure boats) are not subject to the provisions of the Tariff Schedules of the United States. Accordingly, a classification for such vessels has not been provided in the TSIUS. The Bureau of Customs interpretation holds that air-cushion vehicles travelling over water are "vessels" within the meaning of the Merchant Marine Act of 1920.
